also on the Crown land of Waiakea. is estimated that there are between 20,-000 and 30,000 acres of coffee land in this neighborhood at present inaccessible. If this project is carried out, arrangements might be made with the Waiakea Mill Co., present lessee, by which all of the upper portion of the land of Watakea, above the cane belt, could be made available for settlement.

THE CROWN LANDS.

The total area of the Crown Lands throughout the group is approximate.y 971,463 acres, distributed by islands as

It is almost impracticable at this writing to make any distinction between the ing to make any distinction between the various classes of lands, as many of the larger and more valuable tracts are yet unsurveyed and little known. A striking illustration of this is the land of Olaa, near Hilo, which, until very recently, was generally considered mostly rocky and of little value as agricultural land. Now this is one of the most valuable of the Crown Lands and promises to be the the Crown Lands and promises to be the largest coffee producing land on the island of Hawaii.

For the reasons above given, no little difficulty has had to be overcome in ascertaining their approximate value. Sufficient information is at hand, how-ever, to form a fairly correct approxima-tion of their value, which, for present purposes might be deemed sufficient. In the pursuit of this particular work this office has received the kind assistance of Mr. J. F. Brown, of the Government survey, who is a good and experienced judge of Hawaiian land values.

A description of all the lands accom-panies this report, which, though far from being complete, furnishes a very good idea of their general character and the uses to which they might be put. This work has occupied much time and labor, and it is to be hoped that it will constitute the basis of an extended and complete investigation as to the future possibilities and adaptation of these lands for settlement and agricultural development.

CROWN LAND REVENUE.

The revenue is derived entirely from rents and amounts as of March 31, 1894, to $49,268 75 annually, or for the two years, $98,537.50. This amount, how-ever, does not include the rental (yet to be derived), represented by leases issued under special conditions of settlement, or in the nature of homesteads, which amounts to $15,681.57 per annum. The rent roll shows the leases from which the present revenue is derived, with the names of lessees, date of leases, term of years, annual rentals, and the lands held under each lease. It will be seen that quite a number of the lands, the more valuable ones, are held for long terms of years and in many instances the rents fall far below the prevailing market rates. The following cases will serve to illustrate this:

Totals 424,422 $ 8,005 Total cane land.	8,005	.424,422,	Totals
600 1700 acres cane.	600	13,474	Kauai	Anahola Kauai

REMARKS.	RENTAL	AREA. RENTAL	LOCALITY.	LAND.

The above figures show that of a total acreage of 424,422, including upward of 7800 acres cane land with a very large proportion of good grazing land, the rental per acre averages less than two cents, and for the cane land alone, a fraction over one dollar per acre. These comprise some of the choicest lands in

Of the present revenue, $49 268 75, the sum of $46,634.25 has been collected, leaving rents remaining due and unpaid on March 31st last, $2632.50, nearly all of which being for an advance period.

Colonel Lawler a Candidate For Commander In Chief of the G. A. R.

Colonel Thomas G. Lawler, who is spoken of as the western candidate for the position of commander in chief of the Grand Army ed and installed for 26 consecutive terms as commander of Nevins Post, No. 1, at Rockford, Ills. He celebrated his silver jubilee at his installation in 1893, and promi-

COLONEL LAWLER. nent members of the order from all parts of the country were present to as-Bist at the ceremonies and offer their congratulations. He will have many friends at the next national encampment, which meets in Pittsburg during the week beginning Sept. 10 next, and not a few of them are confident of his election to the highest dignity in the organization.

Colonel Lawler served throughout the war with the famous Nineteenth regiment of Illinois volunteers and gained an honorable record as a soldier. He was in all the battles in which his regiment took part and was mustered out as first sergeant with the brevet of captain. His title of colonel came to him through his connection with the national guard, in which he served for a dozen years or more. After the war he went to work for his father-in-law, who was a miller, and was driving one of the mill teams when he was elected and appointed postmaster of Rockford.

The secret of the unusual procedure of electing a postmaster lay in the fact that there was such a scramble for the office that no one seemed able to decide who should have it, and it was decided to leave the matter to a popular vote. Colonel Lawler won by a large majority and held the office for two terms prior to Cleveland's first administration, when he vacated it in favor of a Democrat, only to be reappointed by President Harrison without the formality of a petition and without opposition. He took to politics naturally and soon achieved prominence in his party. He was a close friend of General John A. Logan, whom he greatly admired and closely resembles. Colonel Lawler was born in England of Irish parents 50 years ago and has lived in Rockford since he was 10 years old.

PRESENTED AT COURT.

Something About the Honor Conferred Upon Mr. Bayard's Private Secretary. The correspondent who went to the trouble and expense of cabling the dispatch from London to the American papers about the extraordinary diplomacy required to secure the presentation to the queen of Lloyd Griscom of Philadelphia, Mr. Bayard's private secretary, is evidently not very well acquainted at the American embassy. According to the dispatch, Mr. Griscom's position is not of the official kind that entitles him to presentation as a matter of course, and Mr. Bayard was only able to arrange it by introducing the young man to Lord Rosebery and having him dine with his lordship, who then benignantly arranged for the private secretary's presentation at some drawing room in the near fu-

Inquiry at the American embassy would have informed the enterprising correspondent that Mr. Griscom was entitled to presentation as a member of our embassador's official family, and that as a matter of fact he had been presented last May without the necessity for resorting to any official circumlocution.

tary have always been presented as a matter of course, and it is quite possible that some of them would have been glad to escape the fuss and feathers attendant upon that rather dismal ceremony.

But Mr. Griscom would probably have found presentation easy enough for him if he had held no official position at all. "Most people do for whom an embassador is willing to vouch, and even without the advantage of personal acquaintance Mr. Bayard would probably have been quite willing to indorse Mr. Griscom, who is descended from two famous Philadelphia families and whose father's name is written at the very top of the Quaker City's roll of enterprising citi-

Clement A. Griscom, president of the International Navigation company and founder of the American line of ocean steamers, is the young secretary's father, and his mother's maiden name was Frances Canby Biddle. No higher recommendation than that furnished by such family names as these could be asked by an American embassador even at such an exclusive and funereal court as that of St. James.
